Q1 Profit Warning

We have cut our estimates significantly after Global Gaming issued a profit warning for Q1 2019 on the back of a tougher operating environment in Sweden. We believe the company will return to growth, but the profit outlook is bleak and we expect 2019 to be a lost year. The company withdraws its dividend proposal, wise we argue, as the cash holding will be needed to cushion further losses and accelerate investments when the timing is right.

The profit warning

Revenue has not met expectations in Q1 due to a combination of factors: the re-regulation in Sweden, stricter compliance and consumer protection measures, the gambling tax and increased competition from the former monopolies. The action programme launched in Q4 has not yet had time to take effect, resulting in a loss for the quarter. Preliminary figures are for revenues of SEK 163m and EBIT of SEK -45m, below our estimates of SEK 230m and SEK 10m respectively and corresponding to a revenue drop of 18% y/y and 31% q/q.

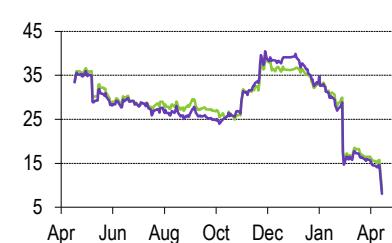

Outlook

We have cut our previous 2019 revenue estimate of SEK 1bn by 24% to SEK 767m and we expect negative EBIT also in Q2. 2019 will likely be a lost year for earnings. We believe the company will be able to grow revenue sequentially in Q2 supported by the launch of new products, continued expansion abroad and a recovery in customer activity in Sweden, and see that continuing over the year. Sustainable profitability is possible, but without a change in market dynamics we do not expect the EBIT margin to expand beyond single digits.

Q1 profit warning

On Monday the 15 April Global Gaming issued a profit warning and the statement that it will withdraw its earlier dividend proposal of SEK 3 per share. As a result of the re-regulation in Sweden, stricter compliance and consumer protection measures in combination with the gambling tax and increased competition from the former monopolies, revenue has not met expectations in Q1. The company underlines that the tougher operating environment is affecting all operators, but given the company's large exposure to Sweden, it is very serious for them and they have not yet been able to adjust their expenses for this new environment resulting in a loss.

For Q1 the preliminary revenue figure is to SEK 163m and EBIT SEK -45m, this is below our forecast of SEK 230m and EBIT of SEK 10m and corresponds to a revenue drop of 18% y/y, 31% q/q and a EBIT margin of -28%.

Further to the comments provided by the company, we also believe that Global Gaming is losing market share, also considering the above mentioned factors. Many of the other large online brands have introduced PayNPlay solutions via either Trustly or Swish, encroaching on Global Gamings earlier USP. Slow progress in the company's technical integrations also provides some explanation to the revenue shortfall in Q1: the company has had issues adapting to the Swedish license regime and the brand SpelLandet has not been re-launched yet.

There is no immediate liquidity risk for Global Gaming: even after accounting for about SEK 45m cash outflow the company should have roughly SEK 215m in net cash position. Cancellation of the dividend could still prove to be a wise choice as it secures the company's continued operation and provides it with the financial flexibility to increase investments again once the market climate improves. We believe that many other smaller operators are not as well capitalized as Global Gaming and the tougher operating environment may be the purge that drives consolidation in the industry. As a consequence customers will flow from smaller operators to the larger resourceful well-known brands over time.

Action programme to balance expenses and revenue

In connection with the report for the fourth quarter 2018, the company issued an action programme to adjust expenses to a slower growth environment. These efforts have not had time to take effect thoroughly in Q1 as many of the marketing campaigns set in motion in 2018 and early 2019 were still running. Although we should anticipate effects from the programme in Q2, the full effect should be seen first in H2. The main pillars in the programme include:

- In Sweden the company will alter the marketing mix from its previous focus on brand-building marketing to conversion and performance driven marketing, for example through social media, reducing absolute spend and increasing ROI.
- Reduce pace of hiring. The company still needs more staff and capacity, but will carefully balance further recruitment against its impact on growth and earnings.
- The company will continue to pursue ongoing cost optimisation in its continued development, without impairing the customer experience.
- Given tougher operating environment in Sweden following the regulation that came into effect on 1 January 2019, the company will purposefully work to spread the risks with more products and more markets.

Estimate update

We have cut our previous 2019 revenue estimate of SEK 1bn by 24% to SEK 767m. We believe the company will be able to grow revenue sequentially in Q2 supported by the launch of Evolution Gaming Live Casino, continued expansion abroad and recovery in customer activity in Sweden and see that continuing over the year.

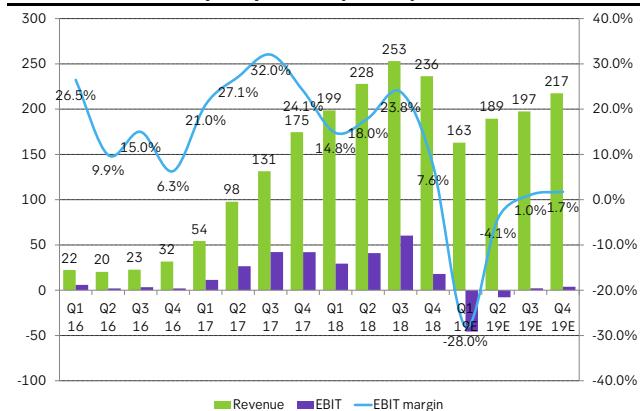

Backing out revenue indications derived from Swedish tax authority, we would estimate that Swedish revenue in March amounted to roughly SEK 53m which is an acceleration from January and February supporting our expectation of a bounce back in growth as soon as in Q2. Based on the March run rate and adding revenue contribution from abroad, the company should be able to generate around SEK 190m in Q2.

Tax	8.0	6.0	9.5
Revenue	44.4	33.4	52.6	32.6	163

Source: SEB

We expect another loss making quarter for the company in Q2 as we foresee some continued inertia in the cost base and revenue level being too low to handle increased cost pressure from the new Swedish gambling tax. From Q3 the company should be set to return to profitable growth; however 2019 will likely be a lost year in terms of earnings, and we have a difficult time seeing the company achieving double digit EBIT margin without any structural change in market dynamics – such as a decrease in competition, decreased customer acquisition costs – or rapid expansion abroad.

Valuation

On our forecasts, Global Gaming trades at 2020 PER 19.2x and 9.3x 2021E. This is not that far off peer valuations and we can probably say that a growth and earnings recovery in line with our estimates is close to what the market is discounting in the share at the current price.

Looking at cash adjusted valuation multiples the situation become more complex. At SEK 8.7 per share Global Gaming's market capitalization is SEK 360m. Adjusting for an estimated SEK 215m in net cash in Q1 2019 the enterprise value is SEK 145m, which is very low as the current cash holding comprises more than 50% of the company value. In this sense the share is very cheap. Should the share price drop to SEK 5, the enterprise value is zero. But considering that the company is lossmaking and that there is no certainty that it will be able to swing back into profitability the cash might become depleted, given the Q1 cash burn run rate, within four quarters, thus relying on solely current cash adjusted valuation is risky but underlines a large upside in the event of a turnaround. We believe this will add to volatility in the share and contribute to large swings in the share price.

Overview

Investment considerations

Global Gaming aspires to continue to gain market share by improving its product offering and expanding geographically. The company has launched Ninja Casino in Estonia in late 2018 and will add sportsbetting and more live casino games in 2019. Gross margin is far below that of peers; if the company is able to improve underlying profitability by gaining volume and renegotiating supplier contracts then there is high earnings growth potential.

Company profile

Global Gaming is a Nordic online gambling operator which, via its innovative PayNPlay solution, has been able to break in to the highly competitive Nordic online casino market. The company is transitioning from a start-up to an industrialized online gambling operator and is ramping up a operational hub in Malta, to complement the group main office in Malmö. Global Gaming generates about 90% of revenue from its main brand Ninja Casino as of Q3 2018.

Valuation approach

We take support in a DCF model using 10% WACC. This is higher than, for example, the 7.5% we use for Kindred and motivated by small cap, the short company history and high dependence on single market and single brand. We also take support in comparable multiples such as PER and EV/EBITDA.

Investment risks

Sweden will re-regulate in 2019. Global Gaming has been granted a licence, but it is unclear how market shares will be affected post regulation. We assume 80% revenue exposure to Sweden - this would indicate 14% gross margin decline in 2019. The case relies on how well Global Gaming will be able to recoup that lost margin.
